

ABSTRACT

A formed metallic armor assembly is disclosed, wherein a backing portion is adhered to a durable, formed metallic facing element. The metallic facing element has a reduced effective density to reduce the weight of the assembly without reducing the effectiveness of defeating penetration threats. The backing portion is selected to have a predetermined thickness to be effective against predetermined penetration threats.